Republican Keynote Speech

We are gathered here to determine the future course our Republic shall take.

Shall we go down the road to the collective farm for the farmer and the barracks for the worker, or shall we continue on the high road planned by the founders of the Republic. The road of freedom for the individual. Freedom to decide where to work, where to play, and where to live, as laid down by the Constitution.

We defend the Constitution. It is our platform.

Our plans for the next four years are:

1. Free the farmer
2. Free the worker
3. Free the businessman
4. Free the people

Who are these men with puny minds that dare tell the voter they can give him everything? Are we as a nation as stupid as they would want us to believe?

We don't want our lives planned like the Russians. We want freedom.

Our ancestors would turn in their graves, even our Democrat ancestors, if they could hear these Democrats trying to get in by promising everything for everybody.

We Republicans shall not buy a free man's vote.

Let the Democrats buy their votes. We shall take the vote of the intelligent, the honest, and the upright citizens and win this election.

We shall have an honest, intelligent, and upright standard bearer.

You shall name him and he shall lead us to victory in the struggle against Democratic, bureaucratic slavery.

"In loneliness sublime
He dared confront the time and speak the Truth"

On this centennial anniversary of the first election of ABRAHAM LINCOLN, let us scan the political philosophy and ideals of a great American who loved the men he fought against as much as he loved the nation he fought for. At his second inauguration, with his own great heart bleeding, he spoke words that will live forever: "With malice towards none, with charity for all." Then let us ponder the words of another great American who faces the crisis of our times with the strength, wisdom and humility that mark all men of destiny whom God raises up in times of great trial.

Wanted: A More Conservative GOP

By THE HON. BARRY GOLDWATER
Republican Senator from the State of Arizona

NOT LONG AGO, Senator John Kennedy stated bluntly that the American people had gone soft. I am glad to discover he has finally recognized that governmental policies which create dependent citizens inevitably rob a nation and its people of both moral and physical strength.

If the American people have gone soft, this is a direct result of the perpetual care-policies of those who have spent 25 years substituting governmental subsidies for individual responsibility.

For 25 years, the party whose philosophy Senator Kennedy represents has been saying to the American public: "Don't tackle that job yourself, it's too hard for you, let the Government do it for you."

For 25 years, the apostles of the welfare state have been busy transforming that stern old gentleman in the top hat, the cutaway coat and the red, white and blue trousers, from a symbol of dignity and freedom and justice for all men into a national wet nurse—dispensing a cockeyed kind of patent medicine labeled "Something for Nothing," passing out soothing syrup and rattles and pacifiers in return for grateful votes on election day.

And now, like the over-indulgent guardians who spent the child's inheritance, catering to adolescent whims and desires, they are naively amazed at what their over-indulgence has produced.

We don't strengthen our nation, or build character, by taking the struggle out of life. The people of America know this—even though it may be a new thought for John Kennedy.

If there has been any development of softness in this nation, it has been developed in our leadership. It is expressed in the fuzzy thinking of the master planners of the super-state who would deny to Americans the right to think for themselves, to face their own responsibilities, to win their own personal victories, and to justify by their own efforts the space they occupy on this earth.

Life was not meant to be easy. The American people are adult—eager to hear the bold, blunt truth, weary of being kept in a state of perpetual adolescence—like so many children, too young to be told the facts of life.

The truth is: the American people have never failed when freedom has been challenged. And what hangs in the balance today? Not just this or that political party, not just this or that system of government, or economic system or social organization—what is at stake in the mid-years of this century, what we will nobly preserve or meanly lose, are the dearest persuasions of 6,000 years of history. What is at stake is love, honor, justice, truth and man's understanding of his relationship to Almighty God. These are the component parts of freedom.

It is true the Democrat Party is suffering from a schizophrenic disorder. The left-wing innovators who have been in control of the Democrat administrations since 1933 have nothing but contempt for the conservative element of their party. And their continuing success at the polls has infected the thinking of too many Republicans.

This nation has always been a conservative nation. The radical ideas of Europe gained no supporters in this land of freedom and opportunity. Dwight Eisenhower was elected on a conservative platform in 1952 because the American people were eager for a return to those governmental principles and practices which have survived the buffeting of chance and the testing of time.

Abraham Lincoln chose to be called conservative—one who would conserve and protect the best of the past and apply the wisdom of the ages to the problems of the future.

A TRUE CONSERVATIVE recognizes that the present generation is a party to a living contract between those who have died to make man's progress possible and those generations yet unborn. And a party to such a contract knows that change and innovation and tinkering, just for the sake of change, can be disastrous.

In 1912 three candidates running for the Presidency vied with each other to be the most conservative. There is today, in our nation and throughout the world, a gradual reawakening of understanding, a return to the conservative beliefs which always have and always will provide the greatest benefit for the greatest number by creating a climate of maximum opportunity with a minimum of governmental interference, taxation and dictation.

Today, the popular outcry is to say: "Well, there's really not much difference between the Republican and the Democrat principles."

Let me confess that we do have some welfare staters in our party on our side of the aisle. And we have, at times, offered candidates and policies which were little more than hollow echoes of the siren songs of the welfare staters; and when we have fallen from grace, the American public has made it abundantly clear that we were in error.

If the Republican Party is to lead this nation forward to a restoration of freedom, to progress and to a better tomorrow, we must once again become the Republican Party. We must be ourselves. We must reassert that it is not only impossible to out-promise the big giveaways of the welfare staters, but morally wrong and evil and destructive of freedom.

During the days of the great depression, that master propagandist of the New Deal, Charlie Michaelson,

Ford Doesn't Laugh Off VP Prospects These Days

H9

REPRINT FROM THE GRAND RAPIDS PRESS OF SUNDAY APRIL 17, 1960

Washington—Rep. Gerald R. Ford, jr., of Grand Rapids used to flash his boyish grin and laugh it off when Washington correspondents asked him about his vice-presidential prospects.

He doesn't do that anymore—and for good reason. Ford, a friend of Vice President Richard M. Nixon since the two of them served in the house together, now seriously believes he has a good chance to become Nixon's running mate. So do a lot of other people.

Ford's vice presidential stock has taken a sharp upturn recently. It's no accident that three of the most solid newspaper columnists in Washington, Roscoe Drummond, Gould Lincoln and Raymond Moley, made prominent mention of Ford in Republican No. 2 spot speculation that obviously drew on information coming from the Nixon camp.

There are several ways to assess Ford's chances — and the answers definitely point to him as a likely prospect for the vice presidential nomination.

Nixon Lists Qualifications.

First of all, Nixon has told friends that the GOP vice presidential candidate should be young, loyal, competent, a guy who does his homework, "trainable" for the many duties Nixon as president would want him to perform.

It's important that Nixon has let it be known that the vice presidency would be an even more important job in a Nixon administration than it has been under Ike. This means the man who would fill it would have to be a trouble-shooter with charm, a Sherman Adams without glacial exterior, a man of decision and dispatch.

If you go through the GOP vice presidential "possibilities" and weigh them in terms of Nixon's requirements, many of the names more frequently mentioned are reduced to a courtesy list.

After the courtesy list is rattled off by Nixon's associates, other names come up—by design and not by accident. And Ford's name is among those put forward.

Now, why is this? It is not because Nixon needs to court Michigan Republicans. They've been his staunch supporters since before the early Rockefeller-for-president boom went poof.

No Delegate Motive.

This indicates there's no delegate-support motive and no idle capriciousness to mention of Ford when it comes from the Nixon camp.

Of course, you have to assume that New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller wouldn't accept the No. 2 spot on a GOP ticket with Nixon if you're going to bet on Ford as a strong VP possible. It seems undeniable that Rockefeller could have second place for the asking.

Eliminating Rockefeller and looking at Ford, you come up with a fellow who rates high in terms of Nixon's VP job description.

Ford has a smile that lights up a room. It's almost as big as Eisenhower's. The Michigan Republican exudes a boyish warmth and charm capable of captivating even the most cynical.

Can Be Dead Serious.

When occasion demands, Ford can be dead serious—and make major decisions without stalling or first running around in circles. While he is intelligent, Ford is not afflicted with the malady from which some "brains" suffer—inability to act promptly.

So Ford looks good on the qualifications chart. And from there a political analyst checking his chances would look at his national convention delegate strength.

As the faithful would say, "we're working on that." And the task seems to be moving along nicely. Ford's Grand Rapids backers will meet April 26 to organize a "Ford for vice president" committee.

These committee members will contact delegates to the state convention and enlist their support for Ford. Ford backers in turn will seek out other states' delegates to the GOP national convention at Chicago in July to "sell" them on Ford for vice president.

Ford Is a Natural.

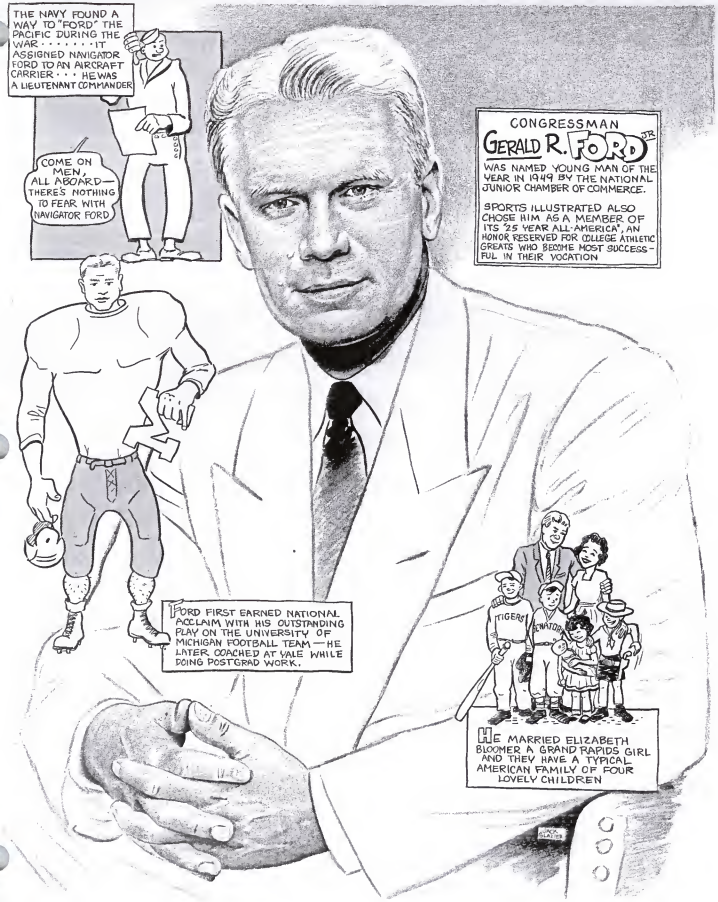

It seems almost certain that Nixon will hand-pick his running mate despite convention appearances to the contrary. This is important because Nixon has told friends he wants a No. 2 man whose views pretty much tally with his own.

Looked at in this light, Ford is a natural as a Nixon vote-getting partner. Both Ford and Nixon are "moderates"—Republicans who are middle-of-the roaders on domestic issues and internationalists in world affairs. Ford also has the asset of being intimately acquainted with defense problems as top Republican on the house defense appropriations subcommittee.

Anyway you add it up, Ford comes out with plus signs. That's why he now sits high on the GOP vice presidential prospects list.

MORTON

Here's a fellow who works on the Perry Daily Journal in Perry, Oklahoma and who has good reason to remember the days before the first Eisenhower Administration. In 1952 he was fighting as a Marine in Korea.

He is.....Ex-Marine Sergeant John E. Andrews of Perry, Oklahoma.

JOHN E. ANDREWS

Eight years ago, I was a Marine, fighting in the front lines along the 38th Parallel in Korea. After 15 months many of us felt that the Korean fighting would never end.

About that time we got the word that Mr. Eisenhower had promised to come to Korea if he were elected. He kept that pledge. That visit was the talk of the troops. It gave our morale a big boost and when he came he got a real welcome -- from all the troops and from all the people of Korea.

PEECH BY REP. WILLIAM E. MILLER, CHAIRMAN OF THE REPUBLICAN CONGRESS-ONAL COMMITTEE BEFORE THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, CHICAGO, LLINOIS, TUESDAY, JULY 26, 1960

Mr. Chairman, Delegates to this Convention, Distinguished uests, and Fellow Americans.

First, I want to express our appreciation to Charley Halleck :o whom the nation owes a great debt. Under his determined leadership, a small but courageous band of Republicans in the House of Represent-atives, outnumbered nearly two to one, battled the big spenders of the Democratic Party to a standstill over the most important domestic issue facing our nation: fiscal responsibility holding down your taxation and the cost of living.

Aided by the wise use of the veto by President Eisenhower, we halted the enactment of legislation providing for billions of dollars of unnecessary Democrat-sponsored expenditures wholly unrelated to the Nation's needs.

These efforts enabled the Administration to salvage a budget surplus of over one billion dollars for the fiscal year just ended. If we can succeed in retaining such surpluses, we will be able either to reduce the national debt or reduce your taxes or both.

We fought not only for soundness in our finances but in support of such vital legislation as the Landrum-Griffin Labor Reform law. This law gave the working men and women of this country a meaningful voice in the management of their unions and a weapon against corruption and raids upon their treasuries. In the last analysis, such legislation is really an accomplishment of the American people--for when you were given the facts you acted. By backing up your Representative and the President, you let it be known that reckless spending of your tax dollars or your union dues must be halted. When you acted, your Representative acted.

Now we need your help again.

Two weeks ago, I sat with you at home and watched and lost

REMARKS OF MRS. FERN ORME, CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION TO THE NEBRASKA STATE LEGISLATURE

"HUMAN NEEDS"

The idea of self-reliance and the individual's ability to meet the challenges of every-day living is not a new one to the average American. The Republican Party maintains, in the words of Abraham Lincoln, that "Government should do for the people only that which they cannot better do themselves."

This, of course, is opposite to the proposals of the Democrats. Their concept is based upon the idea that the individual citizen is a dependent upon the federal government -- and that a "big daddy" government in Washington should take care of everything, from planting peanuts to diapering children.

It is our belief that the best control is local. There are, of course, areas where the community cannot provide the coordination and planning for ambitious future needs. In such instances, it is logical to consider these problems at the state level before taking them to the federal level. In other words, keep the action and the authority for that action as close as possible to Mr. and Mrs. John Doe.

In such fields as health, care of our senior citizens, and medical research, it is, of course, imperative that the federal government, with its vast resources, support and develop new concepts. When the pioneering has been done, however, the Republican Party believes it is best that the actual program come from within the state, rather than outside it.

Communists, living under a powerful and ruthless dictatorship, are forced to work endlessly toward goals decided by their leaders in the Kremlin. One of their major objectives is to overtake the United States in industrial and commercial production. Under their system the individual is enslaved by the State.

REMARKS OF MISS WILDA J. COOK, CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION AS SUPERVISOR OF REGISTRATION, PINELLAS COUNTY, FLORIDA

"POCKETBOOK"

We have heard today two speeches, emphasizing the attitude of our Party toward the international, national, and state scene. In our discussion of these important phases of governmental operation and control we can speak only in generalities.

I am going to discuss our own backyard. In any political talk it's well to keep in mind that whatever promises and slogans are used in politics, it is the individual taxpayer who in the end makes the decision and foots the bill.

The Republican Party has always kept a tight rein on the individual's tax money. We all know this Administration's fight to control government spending and support the sovereignity of our states. Now let us discuss these things in relationship to our own homes. We all remember no doubt how the cost of living sky-rocketed during the past Democratic administrations. We remember too clearly what happened to our savings and to our investments when the cycles of inflation began to spread. We know all to well how the Democrats' programs of welfareism dug deeply into our individual purses and how hard we had to work to meet the increasing costs of everything from food to clothing.

This was not just a happen-stance occurence. It was the direct result of the programs of a party which spent more than we could afford. It was the result of policies which muzzeled individual strength and sapped the vitality of our economy. Through the efforts of the Republican Party we have been able to held off the cycles of inflation. We have been able to meet a balanced budget. Each and every one of you know what it is when you don't keep within your budget. We know the vicious cycle of having to borrow and pay back.

The Republican Party has taken a strong affirmative stand against those evils which would cut the purchasing power of our dollar. Under the Democrats the dollar lost 48 cents of its value. Under Republicans less than five. This is not plain luck. It is the result of a party which understands

ADDRESS BY THOMAS E. DEWEY, FORMER GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK,
BEFORE THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION,
WEDNESDAY EVENING, JULY 27, 1960.

Eight years ago in this hall, the Republican Party nominated a great statesman for President and the people hav e twice overwhelmingly approved that judgment by the election of Dwight Eisenhower.

Tonight you are about to choose a great statesman again. I am confident the people will approve your action and history will salute your judgment in naming Richard Nixon for President.

As we enter the campaign, let us first agree that neither political party in this country has a monopoly on all wisdom and that both parties are sincerely dedicated to the cause of human freedom. Let us also agree that there is no point to the argument that one candidate is too young. The question is: Which man has the experience, the maturity, and the judgment to make the fateful decisions in the years ahead?

On this score, Senator Kennedy has already disappointed his followers. In his first formal address he made a regrettable, smart-aleck attack on the President and the Vice President of the United States. While age alone is not an issue, this irresponsible behavior makes people wonder whether the Senator really is grown up enough to be President.

Even before that speech, Mr. Truman did his wondering out loud. You will recall that four years ago, he said that Mr. Stevenson could not be elected President. He was right.

This time, he suggested on nationwide television that Senator Kennedy is not ready to be President and the country is not ready for him. So there we have it. Whatever Mr. Truman may say in his campaign oratory later, we are grateful for his pre-convention candor.

SECONDING SPEECH BY DR. JOHN C. WOODLAND OF BALTIMORE, MARYLAND FOR HENRY CABOT LODGE, THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1960.

Mr. Chairman, fellow Delegates, and fellow Americans:

I doubt if there is anyone who understands better the meaning of equal opportunity for all than the man it is my honor to second, HENRY CABOT LODGE.

Equal opportunity is not only a matter of simple justice in a democratic society; it is a chief test by which our genuine intentions and beliefs are measured. The minority groups in our own population are, in the rest of the world, the vast majority.

HENRY CABOT LODGE, in his relations with the representatives of the peoples of Africa and vast parts of Asia, in his understanding of the problems they face as emerging nations, has demonstrated time and again his deep belief in equality, in fairness, and in human rights.

The principles of equality that appear in our platform are supported enthusiastically by Lodge. And he brings to their support a conviction that they must become living realities if we are to achieve here the truly open society that freedom demands - and if we are to lead the new nations of the world toward the peace with dignity that all of us seek.

I am proud to second the nomination of a man who has always spoken for justice -- HENRY CABOT LODGE.

SECONDING SPEECH BY MRS. KATHARINE K. NEWBERGER, PRESIDENT OF NEW JERSEY FEDERATION OF REPUBLICAN WOMEN, IN BEHALF OF HENRY CABOT LODGE FOR VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES:

Mr. Chairman, Fellow Delegates:

In 1943, Henry Cabot Lodge had spent only a year in his second term as United States Senator from Massachusetts. He was not young by military standards. He was in the middle of a brilliant career. Yet he left the Senate and in a short time was in combat with the First American Tank Detachment with the British Eighth Army in Libya.

In 1952, at a time when Sen. Lodge's Senate seat was being contested, he selflessly gave of his time and energy and worked to elect our great President, Dwight Eisenhower, because he believed in the leadership that is now a matter of history.

These two chapters from Henry Cabot Lodge's life indicate, more strongly than words, the moral stature and conviction of the man. In the years ahead, those who represent our nation in the highest offices will be dealing with the affairs of a world in which the struggle for men's minds goes on between a free, moral society; and Communism, which begins by denying morality.

In this struggle, Henry Cabot Lodge stands out as one who has shown, throughout his life, his dedication to high purpose. He is in the great Republican tradition of public spirited men who live to serve our nation.

Mr. Chairman, I am honored to second his nomination.

SECONDING SPEECH BY GEORGE CHRISTOPHER, MAYOR OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, IN BEHALF OF HENRY CABOT LODGE FOR VICE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES:

Mr. Chairman...Fellow Delegates:

The challenges before the American people were eloquently expressed two evenings ago by President Eisenhower. This is the decisive moment when we decide to place our strongest...our most effective... our most talented... our most experienced...and the most qualified team of either party before the American people.

Richard Nixon has made our nation cognizant of the tremendous importance of the vice-presidency. Henry Cabot Lodge will continue to bolster the prestige of this high office.

We have seen Henry Cabot Lodge at work, protecting our National Integrity. American hearts swelled with pride when he played the perfect host to Mr. Kruschev, yet never let down his guard, allertly refuting every allegation the Soviet Premier hurled at our country. We heard him tell the Soviets the truth about our economic system...about racial discrimination and our progress eliminating it; how he compared our free labor organization with the Soviet's oppressed proletariat; about our widespread opportunities, compared to Soviet totalitarianism.

With skill...with dedication...and with precise effectiveness, Henry Cabot Lodge cut down the aspirin and conspiring communists to their real diminutive size. He answered the communist slurs and innuendos with blunt American truth and traditional American forthrightness.

Henry Cabot Lodge knows how to deal with Kruschev. We need him alongside of Richard Nixon for the continued safety of America and the Free World... and to preserve our hallowed Constitutional concepts.

What a tremendous American team this will be! I pray fervently that God may grant them the strength to carry on their noble task.

I am proud, indeed, to second the nomination of Henry Cabot Lodge for Vice-President of the United States.

ADDRESS BY HENRY CABOT LODGE, U. S. AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED NATIONS, ACCEPTING THE NOMINATION OF THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION FOR VICE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, JULY 28, 1960.

You have conferred a great honor on me. With all my heart I thank you for your trust. It will impel me to expend every ounce of energy in this campaign.

Americans live in a world so full of dangers that we must counsel together about the issues with the greatest seriousness and candor. The world is dangerous because small groups of men have acquired control of enormous resources and seek to put them wholeheartedly at the service of Communism--a conspiratorial cult which teaches them that they must take over the world. When it becomes obvious to them--as I believe it has--that attempts to do so by military force will bring about their own devastation, they resort to threats, hate propaganda, and midnight treachery. Thus, we could in theory lose our country in two ways: Either all at once, by all-out nuclear war, or gradually by being isolated and nibbled to death.

Of course, we are not going to lose our country. We are going to keep our country. More than that, we are going to advance, using the strengths and the talents which God gave us to build a world in which freedom will be secure; a world in which the rights of small nations will be respected; a world of open societies which practice tolerance and are truly devoted to the dignity of man.

Thus, we approach the future, not smug or self-satisfied; not claiming for ourselves any superman virtues; but thankful that we are just finishing eight full years in which, under that great world leader and great spirit, the leadership of Dwight Eisenhower, many good things have been done in which we can take honest pride. They are eight years in which our house has been put in order, our nation has grown stronger, and, although the world is full of danger and mystery, peace in certain specific ways appears to be a little closer.

I point to these specifics:

NATIONAL COMMITTEE MEETS FRIDAY TO RE-ORGANIZE, ELECT CHAIRMAN

The Republican National Committee will name a National Chairman and choose officers for the next four years, Friday, at 10:00 a.m., in the Waldorf Room of the Conrad Hilton.

Wallace Townsend, a silver-haired Arkansan, will, as Senior Member, call the Committee to order. Townsend, a spry, slim political veteran, has been a National Committee Member since 1928 and is attending his 13th Republican National Convention.

The Committee will elect its National Chairman following appointment by Townsend of a select Committee which will contact Presidential candidate Nixon to determine his choice. Traditionally, the Committee ratifies the candidate's recommendation for Chairman.

Twenty-nine new members will be accepted to membership. Members are chosen in their respective 52 state and territorial Republican organizations prior to the convention. State Chairmen whose states went for Eisenhower in 1956, or whose states elected a Republican governor or a Republican majority in their Congressional delegation in 1958 are automatic Members of the Committee. Hawaii is the only state whose Chairman qualifies other than through its Eisenhower vote. Hawaii wasn't a state in 1956, but elected a Republican Governor in 1959.

The Committee will also elect a Secretary, Treasurer and four Vice-Chairmen to serve until the next National Convention. The group meets subject to call by the National Chairman. Resolutions providing for its operations under its by-laws will also be acted upon.

REMARKS BY VICE PRESIDENT RICHARD M. NIXON AT REPUBLICAN WOMEN'S BREAKFAST, MORRISON HOTEL, CHICAGO, ILL, JULY 28, 1960. (VERBATIM TRANSCRIPT)

I want to say to all of you this morning how much I appreciate the opportunity to be invited to this ladies only breakfast. I left one day before yesterday, and I must say to see such an array of leaders of our party among the women is certainly most heartening the morning after the nomination.

I didn't get much sleep last night, as you can imagine, and, incidentally, some of the husbands of those here didn't either. because if they were out they were with me until 3:30 in the morning. After that, they've got to account for their own time. Anyway, with only three hours' sleep, it is perhaps a little difficult to express adequately how you feel at a time like this.

I can only say, as I have indicated to so many people in this room, that this election to be won is going to take an effort such as we have never had in an election in this country because it will be the closest in the history of this country in this century, in my opinion. It will be won not by the speeches of the candidates -- they will help -- and not by the public relations gimmicks, so-called, the television shots and the billboards, and the badges and the like, --they will help -- but in a close election what counts is what happens in the precincts. I know that because Pat and I went to North Dakota. Believe me, we had everything going for us there. We started way behind. We did better than we expected in the end. We had a marvelous candidate, John Davis. In Fargo we had the biggest crowd in history; at Williston the biggest crowd in history; at Minot the biggest crowd in history, and we lost by one half a vote a precinct, and one half a vote a precinct in Indiana, in Arkansas, in Maine, in California, in New York, in Ohio -- one half vote a precinct in any state in this country -- might make the difference this time. So, that's the reason why the women this time who carried such a tremendous load in '52 and '56 have even greater responsibility, because you are the ones who do the work. We know this. The men talk, sometimes too long, but THE women do the work, and in doing the work we simply have to have a volunteer corps such as we have never had before.

I can only say, in conclusion, speaking to the women who do the work, at such

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION ADDRESS BY BERTHA S. ADKINS, UNDER SECRETARY OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE, TUESDAY, JULY 26, 1960.

Tonight we pay tribute to our beloved President -- Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Throughout his entire life, President Eisenhower has shown a deep sense of responsibility to our nation.

He is a man of unquestioned integrity; a man of great moral force.

He has a sincere belief in us as people -- as individuals and as a nation.

He has made us think of what we do today in terms of what it will mean to our grandchildren.

We are proud that President Eisenhower, like Abraham Lincoln, chose the Republican Party as his political party.

Several years ago, I had a series of breakfasts for women leaders to meet and talk with the President. And I remember so clearly his answer to one woman who asked about the role of government in solving our problems. He said that government must create the climate in which every individual in our nation has the opportunity to develop and use his abilities to their greatest extent. But -- for those who need help -- we must provide help.

That is why at the very beginning of his administration, President Eisenhower brought to his Cabinet a voice to speak for human needs. With a Republican Congress, he established the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare -- a Department devoted to our greatest national resource -- the people of the United States.

In this Department we seek to find the answers for cancer, heart disease, mental illness and other diseases afflicting our people.

Here we work on preventing illness -- combatting epidemics -- controlling air and water pollution -- providing protection from the new health hazards of our atomic age.

We join with local communities in building hospitals, nursing homes and other health facilities.

We bring better health services to mothers and children.

We give aid to the blind, the disabled, the needy, and we give assistance to mentally retarded children.

And we seek to [illegible]

"FOREIGN POLICY"

That all Americans are united in their desire for world peace is a fact no one will deny. The Republican Party believes the best foreign policy consists of dynamic leadership, with emphasis upon a strong National Defense, nutured by a sound economy based on the principles of the free enterprise system.

The greatest threat to the peace of the world lies behind what is termed the Iron and Bamboo curtains. The most elemental drive of communism today is to enslave the entire world. They are, by the very nature of their government, in direct opposition to those elements which a free and democratic nation supports.

The Republican Party has consistently maintained the premise that only through development of systems of government free from tyrannical domination can our neighbors the world over secure for themselves the rights and dignities due them as free men.

We must face the fact that the Communist threat is a bold reality. They presently have the capability to shower a reign of terror over our land. Therefore we must prepare ourselves for even greater development of nuclear weapons and armaments. This is necessary not only for our own defense but for the protection of the entire free world. We have repeatedly shown in the forum of nations that we are a living example of government based upon individual rights of its citizens. If we are to perpetuate these principles, we must maintain a strong defense to show free men everywhere that we are not susceptible to threats, intimidation, or bullying.

We cannot however carry this tremendous burden alone. We live today in a world where one can have lunch in New York, dine in London and get to Paris in time to attend theatre. The world is now too small for us to hide behind our oceans. The United States since the days of Teddy Roosevelt, has been emerging as a world power. That respons bility falls upon us more heavily today than at any other time in our history. We are no longer in a position to backtrack. We are leaders, and as such, we must lead the nations of the world along the

YR CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATES

Chicago.... In 1946, two men under 37, one from Massachusetts and one from California, were elected to the House of Representatives. In 1960, one of them will be chosen President of the United States. Whatever the election's outcome, the leadership of both parties will pass to younger men.

Like the Nixon of fourteen years ago, many Young Republicans are now making their bid for their first Congressional seat.

Typical of the Y R "under 37" club is Waldo Ackerman of Springfield (21st District), Illinois. The present State's Attorney of Sangamon County, Ackerman has served in numerous important Y R positions and was chosen Springfield's Outstanding Young Man in 1957.

California has six youthful Congressional candidates. John Rousselot, public relations consultant and former Director of Public Information for the Federal Housing Administration, is running in the 25th District.

Robert Castle, of San Bernadino, former Marine, F. B. I. agent, and Deputy District Attorney, was the 27th District's choice for the nomination. Another ex-marine, Ray Arnett of Bakersfield, will try for the seat from the 14th District. Robert Hannon (8th District), Bill McIntyre(26th), and Nick Verreos (5th) round out the group.

THE TRANSCRIPT OF REMARKS BY PRESIDENT DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER AT REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE BREAKFAST, MORRISON HOTEL, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, JULY 27, 1960

My friends of the Republican Party: Any man who is compelled and who, as a matter of duty and because of circumstances of his office has to face constantly these microphones gets a little bit weary of his own voice. (Laughter)

This morning I had a little incident that made me even a little more discourged with my efforts to limit my appearances before these devilish mechanisms. I was getting up and, as you know, it was rather late when we all got to bed last night: but my faithful instructions were that I would surely want to hear something on television and, by turning around, I found myself talking to myself about things here at the speech last night. (Laughter)

It did seem a little bit too much.

Now, the first thing I should like to do is to mention the great compliment paid to me by Governor Stratton and the people of Illinois in presenting me with this bust of Lincoln. I might tell you that for eight--for seven and a half long years--there have always been in my office four prints. All of us certainly know who they are; four men I admire extravagently. They are Benjamin Franklin, George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and General Lee. I cannot think of any four men whose histories can do more to inspire anyone to try to do his best.

Now, you people have got a very tough job, I do not know whether it is finished yet or not, and that is getting the platform (laughter). Now, this is not merely a matter of proposing differing views among able and dedicated people; but they have got this in the background: I am still President of the United States for six months. (Laughter and applause).

You cannot obviously put out a platform that tells exactly what Republicans are going to do until there is some effort to make sure that that is exactly what I am going to do. (Laughter)

I just give one of the complicating factors. I have no advice for them. As a matter of fact, of all the things I have heard, they have certainly got into a state of composition that does no violence to my beliefs. But it does make a three-cornered, rather than merely a bilateral, sort of argument. (Laughter and applause).

AMs of THURSDAY
JULY 28, 1960

SPEECH BY THE HONORABLE MEADE ALCORN, NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN FOR CONNECTICUT AND FORMER CHAIRMAN OF THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE, INTRODUCING MR. CHARLES H. PERCY, CHAIRMAN OF THE RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE, BEFORE THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, CHICAGO, WEDNESDAY EVENING, JULY 27, 1960

Mr. Chairman, Fellow-Americans:

The adoption of the Party's platform is one of the most significant responsibilities of this convention. In the discharge of this responsibility, we outline our objectives and spell out the means by which we expect to achieve them. As Republicans, we shall do this with clarity and candor.

The best measure of the sincerity of any promise is the extent to which previous pledges have been fulfilled. In this we Republicans have an unsurpassed record. Our opposition is distinguished principally by its consistent and callous disregard of platform pledges. Two weeks ago at Los Angeles, the opposition party adopted a cynically-conceived conglamoration of promises which it is incapable of fulfilling. This will not be said of our platform. The nominees of that convention have by their performance revealed convictions impossible to reconcile with the platform to which they now profess adherence. This will not be said of the nominees of this convention. We shall promise only what we can perform. We shall perform what we promise.

In 1958, the Republican Party undertook an experiment new to American politics. For the first time in our history, a major party undertook to spell out its long range objectives in all of the areas of political responsibility. As your National Chairman at that time, I had the honor to create and appoint a committee of distinguished Americans who agreed to undertake that task. Those who so unselfishly and so effectively served included teachers, farmers, scientists, laborers, economists, lawyers, housewives -- people drawn from every possible area of activity and interest. They were people who in the main had no prior political experience. They were representative Americans who believed that our freedom, our security as a nation, could best be preserved and strengthened by strengthening the Republican Party. This Republican Committee on Program and Progress organized early in 1959 concluded its work before the end of that year.

STATEMENT BY VICE PRESIDENT RICHARD NIXON

Governor Rockefeller and I have been in consultation with the Platform Committee since its sessions began. By yesterday, it was apparent that there was general agreement among members of the Committee and between the Governor and myself regarding the basic philosophy to be followed as we go into the 1960 campaign.

Whatever differences that existed between Governor Rockefeller and myself were matters more of specifics than of principle. I felt it in the best interests of both our country and the Republican Party at this critical time in history that it be made clear that we stood firmly together on these important issues.

Therefore, I called Governor Rockefeller and arranged a private meeting last night. The text of the statement released by the Governor defines our area of agreement and provides a guide to our thinking for the consideration of the Platform Committee.

WE'VE BEEN SWAMPED!

Senator Barry Goldwater's popularity at the Republican convention is being demonstrated by the tremendous enthusiam shown by delegates and visitors to the convention, who have taken over 10,000 Goldwater buttons in the last 48 hours, and are still demanding more.

Youth for Goldwater for Vice President headquarters has been deluged with requests for buttons and literature, and temporarily we're out of buttons, but we ask that delegates and visitors be patient while we replentish our supplies. We'll have more late Monday afternoon, and meanwhile everyone is welcome to come in and have a coke or coffee, as well as any of our literature. Our office is in the Columbian Room on the third floor of the Congress Hotel.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

BRINTON ANSWERS HALL

William M. Brinton, leader of the "Draft Rockefeller" move, today (Wednesday, July 20) responded to doubts cast on the validity of a recent poll which showed Nixon losing to Kennedy in five key states. "Mr. Hall obviously would like to discredit the facts revealed by the poll we cited earlier today," Brinton said. "This is particularly difficult for him to do since the same political pollsters were employed by Mr. Hall in 1952 to find out why President Eisenhower won and the Republicans lost. Since that time the Republican National Committee has frequently used this organization. Simply because Mr. Hall doesn't like to face the fact that Nixon would probably lose in November, this in no way reflects upon the validity of the data which has been collected. We also urge Mr. Hall to contact Mr. Humphrey, formerly campaign director, Republican National Committee. Mr. Humphrey, too, has used this polling concern. The facts are simple, though not very pleasant for Mr. Hall.

"The messenger who conveyed the news to Leonard Hall has my sympathy. In the days of the Roman Caesars, messengers who brought bad news were executed on the spot.

22 YEAR OLD OREGON DELEGATE
YOUNGEST AT CONVENTION

Chicago.... Bruce Philippi, a 22-year-old grass seed farmer from Stayton, Oregon, may not be the youngest man to ever cast a vote for the nomination of a U.S. President, but he could be the youngest delegate to participate in the 1960 Republican National Convention here.

A veteran of Young Republican activity, Philippi was picked as an alternate by the elected Oregon delegation following the state election in May. In the event the elected delegate is unable to attend, Philippi will cast his vote with the Oregon delegation Wednesday evening.

Philippi, who holds a B.S. degree in political science from the University of Oregon, started his political career while still in high school by working on the senatorial campaign of Guy Gordon in 1954. He credits Gordon for arousing his interest in national and local politics.

In 1956 he worked on behalf of Elmo Smith who was then candidate for Governor of Oregon and is now a candidate for the U.S. Senate. In 1958 he was instrumental in sending Oregon's Walter Norblad to the House of Representatives of the United States.

A tall, slender, good looking young man with a trim crew cut, Philippi lives with his parents in Stayton. He is on the executive board of the Marion County, Oregon, senior Republican organization as well as serving on the State Central Committee on candidate assistance. He has held several YR positions and is now Director of Region Nine of the National YR Federation.

The young delegate arrived in Chicago Friday (July 22) morning, and entered immediately into the activities of the Young Republicans.

Philippi has no political plans for the immediate future other than to work on behalf of the Republican ticket, but at a later date plans to run for public office and make politics a major part of his life.

PRESS RELEASE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
July 25, 1960
SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER (R. Ariz.)

The planks of the Republican Platform as released by the committees on Sunday reflect hard and serious study in the areas that they covered. I am particularly impressed by the statement on economic growth and business, and I feel that the subcommittee and Senator Prescott Bush have done an outstanding job in this plank. It is perfectly clear in the planks that have been released that the judgments have been those of the members of the committees acting independently. I hope the same independent approach will be used in the planks remaining to be decided upon, and I hope the Chairman of the committee, Mr. Percy, will resist every effort of outsiders to put pressure on the committees, and this includes Cabinet members, Governors, Senators and Vice-Presidents.

HOMETOWNERS AT THE WICKETS

CBS Newsman Bill Downs notes that guards at the entrances to the Democratic National Convention at the Los Angeles Memorial Sports Arena are real hometowners.

Downs spotted guards at one entrance stopping Senator Frank Church of Idaho, keynote speaker, and Democratic National Committee Chairman Paul M. Butler to inspect their credentials.

But when Tony Curtis, Sammy Davis, Jr. and Peter Lawford arrived to join other movie stars in opening ceremonies, the guards just waved them in.

STOP THE PRESSES....Press releases are the hallmark of every political convention, but the Democratic conclave at the Los Angeles Memorial Sports Arena may be pioneering new fields.

CBS News Correspondent Alexander Kendrick stopped to buy an ice cream cone at a stand in the Arena and was handed, along with his cone, a two-page publicity story about the ice cream and its origins.

FAST SWITCH AHEAD....CBS News producer Jack Beck will be making a fast switch after he finishes his assignment for the CBS Television Network at the Democratic Convention in Los Angeles.

TRUMAN, KENNEDY AND JOHNSON NEWS CONFERENCES
BROADCAST LIVE BY THE CBS TELEVISION NETWORK

The pre-convention news conferences of former President Harry S. Truman, Senator John F. Kennedy, and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, centering around the issue of Kennedy's drive for the Democratic Presidential nomination, were broadcast live on the CBS Television Network.

Mr. Truman's attack on the convention preparations, which touched off the round of news conferences, was televised live from the Truman Memorial Library, in Independence, Mo., Saturday, July 2.

The Kennedy reply was televised live from the Hotel Roosevelt, New York, Monday, July 4, over the CBS Television Network, which also scheduled live coverage of Senator Johnson's news conference in Washington, D.C., this afternoon (July 5).

The three special broadcasts pre-empted scheduled programing on the CBS Television Network. They were seen as part of the network's continuing live coverage of pre-convention news highlights and of the Democratic and Republican National Conventions themselves.

EERIE CAMERA PUTS WALTER CRONKITE IN TWO PLACES AT ONE TIME

With a simple flick of a switch on the back of a new master-slave camera, only one of its kind in existence, CBS News Central Desk can lift anchor man Walter Cronkite out of his seat in CBS News headquarters at the Democratic National Convention and put him right on the convention floor.

The gear that spirits him electronically wherever CND chief John Day wills it is far from simple. And it's more than a little eerie. The slave camera, located in the press booth high up under the rafters of the Los Angeles Memorial Sports Arena, turns and focuses and zooms all by itself -- untouched by human hands.

Developed by the CBS Television Network, the new camera, a refinement of the VideoScene gear used on Cronkite's "Sunday News Special" program, includes a master unit that photographs Cronkite at his anchor spot and a slave camera that photographs the convention hall. By means of a complex and highly sensitive tracking system on the master camera, cameraman Frank McSpedon, seated in the anchor studio, can move the slave to shoot any part of the convention hall simply by moving the master camera. With no more than the soft hum of a dozen little motors to indicate that it is functioning, the camera swings precisely to the position chosen by McSpedon.

To transfer Cronkite's image to the speaker's rostrum, McSpedon merely focuses his master camera on Cronkite and his slave camera on

KENNEDY NOMINATION CLIMAXES THIRD DAY OF CBS NEWS COVERAGE OF DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION; U.N. EMERGENCY SESSION IS ALSO CARRIED ON CBS TELEVISION NETWORK

Report of Balloting at Los Angeles Is Marked By Simultaneous International Developments Integrated Into Broadcast of Nomination

Los Angeles, July 14, 1960---More than nine hours on the CBS Television Network yesterday (July 13) were devoted to CBS News coverage of the third day's session of the 1960 Democratic National Convention, climaxed by the nomination of Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts for the Presidency of the United States, his arrival at the Memorial Sports Arena and his address to the convention.

CBS News coverage of the political story in Los Angeles was marked by live cut-ins from the Security Council of the United Nations in New York City, where the Congo crisis was being debated at an emergency session. A series of running convention news breaks and exclusive material also marked the day's CBS Television Network broadcasts.

A continuous live feed to the CBS News control room in the Arena integrated the cameras in the Security Council Chamber into the overall group of pictures from which Senior Convention Director Don Hewitt selected the scenes shown on air. Included in the U.N. coverage was the rebuttal of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to the Soviet Union

Convention Sidelights:

IT'S DIFFERENT OVER THERE

CBS News Correspondent Paul Niven, former Moscow Bureau Chief now covering the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles, says the election of Soviet political leaders is much easier to cover.

Says Niven: "One person, perhaps a farmer from the Ukraine or a milk maid from Kazakhstan, gets up in the Supreme Soviet and 'nominates' the entire government. This 'spontaneous' recommendation by a humble representative of the people is then approved unanimously. Thirteen hundred hands shoot up and thirteen hundred parrot-like voices murmur 'Da.' If any caucuses precede this ritual, newsmen are not invited."

* * *

THE SECRET IS OUT... Now it can be told -- CBS News Correspondent Tom Costigan has revealed how he scored a clean beat on the story of the New York delegation's early 101-votes-for-Kennedy caucus at the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles.

With all the doors to the caucus room in the Ambassador Hotel locked, Costigan noticed a small but convenient patio outside.

Costigan went to the patio and slipped through a window into a utility closet in the caucus room where he could hear the tabulation of the votes.

Costigan quickly phoned the results to anchor man Walter Cronkite in the convention hall, giving CBS News a clean beat over all other media on the important story.

"THE MAN NEXT TO THE MAN WITH THE MICROPHONE"

Viewers of the national political conventions on the CBS Television Network are seeing another face almost as frequently as that of CBS News' anchor man Walter Cronkite. Yet this "man next to the man with the microphone" is almost unknown.

He is Sanford (Sandy) Socolow, a senior CBS News writer who serves as Cronkite's news assistant during convention and election coverage. Socolow keeps track of every news development (300 words of wire service copy pass through his hands every minute) and is the first recipient of the exclusive information gathered by CBS Newsmen and editors on and off the convention floor.

It is his job to select the most urgent of this material and pass it along to Cronkite. Socolow is seated on Cronkite's right. On Cronkite's left, Shirley Lavine serves as the anchor man's technical communications link with the rest of the CBS News team covering the convention story.

When not on camera or at the convention hall during a session, Socolow assists Cronkite in keeping up to date "The Book" -- actually three giant books crammed with every type of political information imaginable (more than 100 sub-headings), from when the first Democratic Party convention took place (1832) to when a fire broke out on a convention floor (Democratic Convention, Chicago, 1952). It is updated by Cronkite personally during the years between national elections, and is

NOTES IN PASSING

By Ron Cochran

(CBS News Correspondent Covering the Democratic Convention)

The floor passes are the political equivalent -- to Democrats -- of tickets to the Army-Navy game. They are very scarce. There aren't nearly enough to go around.

The doors of the floor area are protected by husky uniformed guards who won't let people in unless they have floor passes that are blue, in contrast to the so-called perimeter passes that are green and let you into the arena, but only around the fringes.

An intern in the first-aid station told me that a man sprained his ankle, and somebody sent for a wheel chair. But the guards wouldn't let the wheel chair through the door because the man pushing it didn't have a blue pass, and the guards have to be careful. You can never tell what tricks people will use to get in.

Furthermore, nobody in the first-aid station -- including the two doctors, two interns and two nurses -- has a floor pass.

So if anybody needs medical attention on the floor, he'll have to get it from a doctor delegate.

SERIES OF NEWS BREAKS HIGHLIGHTS SEVEN-HOUR BROADCAST OF DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION ACTIVITY ON CBS TELEVISON NETWORK

Los Angeles, July 13, 1960—A continuing series of news breaks with full coverage of the civil rights battle, the first report of the California caucus, the Lyndon B. Johnson-John F. Kennedy "debate," and striking pictures of the Adlai E. Stevenson demonstration on the floor of the Memorial Sports Arena, highlighted seven hours of CBS News broadcasts of the Democratic National Convention here yesterday, Tuesday, July 12, on the CBS Television Network.

News breaks reported by CBS News correspondents using the eye-witness camera, transi-talkie radio and other mobile equipment included:

Louisiana delegate William M. Rainach's disclosure that the South may carry its anti-civil rights plank fight into the Electoral College of the United States when the next president is being chosen (CBS News Correspondent Bill Downs).

Senator Spessard L. Holland's warning that the "strong" civil rights plank later enacted by the convention would "probably drive our (southern) states out of the Democratic Party" (CBS News Correspondent Richard C. Hottelet).

Wisconsin delegation chairman Ivan Nestingen's suggestion that his state may switch its planned "courtesy vote" for Senator Hubert H. Humphrey to Senator Kennedy if the Massachusetts contender appears to be winning on the first ballot (CBS News Correspondent Hottelet).

CBS TELEVISION NETWORK'S NEW FOUR-POUND, THREE-EYED CAMERA TO TAKE VIEWERS INTO BUSTLE OF POLITICAL CONVENTION FLOORS

A tiny, new "Eyewitness" camera, big brother, relatively speaking, to the instrument now orbiting earth in the Tiros weather satellite, will take CBS Television Network viewers onto the swarming floors at the Republican and Democratic political conventions next month.

Combining multiple-lens flexibility and new sensitivity, the "Eyewitness," nevertheless, manages to cut some ten pounds from the overall weight of miniature cameras used on the floor of the 1956 conventions. Key to the reduction is the widespread use of transistors. In the camera itself, which weighs just over four pounds, transistors replace all 65 tubes of the standard studio instrument.

The new "Eyewitness" marks the closest approach to date to studio-camera sensitivity in a miniature portable, according to Robert Hammer, CBS Television Network manager of technical planning. In engineering terms, the standard studio camera provides 650 lines of resolution. Circa 1956 portables operated at 450 lines, while the "Eyewitness" achieves 600. This means, Hammer explains, that the new instrument can operate on less light, probing more areas of the convention floors.

SECOND TIME AROUND -- CBS Newsman Harry Reasoner is attending his second Republican National Convention -- in a very different capacity from the first.

The first time, he was addressing the convention.

That was in 1944, when he was Private First Class Harry Reasoner, age 21, assigned to a specialized training unit at UCLA. P.F.C. Reasoner entered an original essay contest sponsored by the Young Republicans and won.

His prize -- a chance to speak before the convention.

Reasoner got an emergency leave ("My colonel was a Republican"), went to Chicago and spoke "for about two minutes" to the Republicans, who were getting ready to nominate Thomas E. Dewey for President.

The newsman would have it known that there was no partisanship involved, he has always been registered as an Independent.

"CRASH UNIT" IN ACTION

CBS News coverage of the Republican National Convention in Chicago is featuring use of a six-ton "crash unit," a fully mobile, self-contained television broadcasting "station" built into a station wagon that responds like a fire engine to a fast-breaking news story anywhere within a twenty to twenty-five mile radius of the city.

Designed by Sam Levin, field operations engineer for the CBS Television Network in New York, and technical director John R. Satter, the sleek and compact unit was driven from New York to Los Angeles by Satter for the Democratic Convention, then on to Chicago.

Designed for CBS News and put together about three months ago, the "crash unit" contains $60,000 worth of electronic equipment, according to Levin. It includes one camera, a microwave transmitter, a diplex (cq) audio system which permits the simultaneous transmission of the video and audio signals, four microphones and a 450-megacycle two-way short-wave radio system whereby the unit can keep in constant contact with master control, either at CBS News headquarters in the Conrad Hilton Hotel or the International Amphitheatre.

The "crash unit" can supply its own power via a gasoline engine, and can also utilize regular power lines at remote locations where an important news story is in the making.

The complete procession of the Nixon party will be covered live on the CBS Television Network.

President Eisenhower will arrive in Chicago at approximately 11:00 AM, Chicago time (12:00 Noon, EDT) Tuesday, July 26. He will land at O'Hare Field, fly to Meigs Field, and then travel by automobile to State and Madison Streets, where the Presidential party will be welcomed officially, and then to the Blackstone Hotel.

President Eisenhower's motorcade from the Blackstone to the Chicago Amphitheatre, where he will deliver a speech before the convention Tuesday night, July 26, also will be covered live on the CBS Television Network.

All times, subject to change because of flying conditions, are approximate, but the arrivals both of the President and the Vice President will be carried live as they occur.

THE STORY BEHIND THE EXCLUSIVE CBS NEWS COVERAGE OF KENNEDY AND JOHNSON EN ROUTE TO THE COLISEUM

Los Angeles, July 15---Twenty-one cameras plus detective work to discover the route of the Democratic Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees and quick cooperation from the Pacific Telephone Company made possible the exclusive interviews and pictures of Senators John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson seen Friday on the CBS Television Network at the beginning of the final convention session.

There were several routes that the nominees could have taken from the Biltmore Hotel, Democratic Party headquarters in downtown Los Angeles, to the Memorial Coliseum, the forum for the acceptance speeches. But Paul Levitan, executive producer of CBS News convention coverage, learned the actual route by 1:30 PM, PDT, on Friday and ordered camera placements and the special CBS News crash unit into action.

Microwave transmitters were installed by the telephone company and microwave receivers were placed by the CBS Television Network at three locations -- at Olympic and Flower, at the Orthopedic Hospital at 2400 South Flower Street, and on the roof of the Memorial Sports Arena. There were additional facilities outside the Hotel Biltmore and the Coliseum.

Senator Johnson was interviewed in his car outside the Hotel by Edward R. Murrow, who was in the CBS News anchor studio at the

CBS TELEVISION NETWORK AIRLIFTS 15 TONS OF EQUIPMENT FROM LOS ANGELES TO CHICAGO FOR G.O.P. CONVENTION

Los Angeles——A split second after the last hurrah at the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles Friday night, the CBS Television Network began a 2,000-mile transfer of an entire television "city" which must be completed in only 36 hours.

Starting at 8:00 PM, PDT, Friday, 15 tons of technical equipment, including 17 cameras, began moving out of CBS News Democratic convention headquarters in Los Angeles, headed toward CBS News Republican convention headquarters in Chicago and a Monday, July 18 deadline. The G.O.P. sessions start on July 25, but the equipment must be set up earlier.

"We're cutting this as fine as we can," says Robert M. Hammer, manager of technical planning for the CBS Television Network, who is in charge of the move. "This is the final run on a plan we've been working on for months."

Friday evening, even before the crowd in the Memorial Colisum had begun filing out, huge trucks started shifting the cameras, monitors and other technical equipment that must be installed for the Republican National Convention in Chicago.

The trucks shuttled back and forth between the Democratic convention site and the Los Angeles International Airport all night.

CBS NEWS FIRST TO REPORT KENNEDY CHOICE OF JOHNSON AS RUNNING MATE IN FOURTH DAY OF CONVENTION COVERAGE ON THE CBS TELEVISION NETWORK

Exclusive Interview With Mrs. Kennedy and Fast-Breaking News Shifts Included in More Than Five Hours Devoted to Democratic Session Nominating Senator for Vice President

Los Angeles, July 15—The fourth session of the Democratic National Convention, at which Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas was nominated by acclamation for the Vice Presidency, was the subject of more than five hours of CBS News coverage on the CBS Television Network yesterday (Thursday, July 14). Exclusive interviews by CBS News correspondents roaming the floor of the Los Angeles Memorial Sports Arena and covering a wide variety of remote locations outside the convention hall were integrated into the full, live coverage of the convention proceedings.

Convention coverage began with the day's most important news beat being carried exclusively on the CBS Television Network. At 7:02 PM, EDT, Senator Henry (Scoop) Jackson of Washington revealed that Senator Johnson would be Senator John F. Kennedy's selection as Vice President. Senator Jackson said he would second the nomination.

Four minutes later, at 7:06 PM, EDT, Senator Kennedy appeared on the CBS Television Network at a special press conference at his Senator Henry (Scoop) Jackson of Washington scooped Senator John F. Kennedy on the Democratic Presidential nominee's announcement Thursday of his choice for Vice President.

At 7:02 PM, EDT, Senator Jackson, in an exclusive CBS News interview on the CBS Television Network, revealed that Senator Lyndon B. Johnson would be Senator Kennedy's selection as Vice President when, in response to a query from CBS Newsman Charles Von Fremd, he said that he would second the nomination of Senator Johnson.

Four minutes later, at 7:06 PM, EDT, Senator Kennedy appeared on the CBS Television Network at a special press conference at the Hotel Biltmore, and more formally announced Senator Johnson as his choice. But Senator Jackson, in his appearance on television, scooped the Presidential nominee.

PRAIRIE SCHOONER EVOKES SHADES OF ABE LINCOLN AND THE 1860 WEENER

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS--The long shadow of Abe Lincoln was cast over a hot dog today (Mon. July 25), as a David Berg & Co. covered wagon served free frankfurters to the delegates at the G.O.P. National Convention.

Seen munching a weenie served to him by a gal in hoopskirts, was a model posing as Abe Lincoln, nominated 100 years ago in Chicago. The hot dog firm, which also celebrates its 100 anniversary this year, is using the prairie schooner, the free franks, the gal in crinoline, and the Lincolnesque actor as a sentimental gesture honoring the visit of David Berg himself to the 1860 GOP National Convention, the one which nominated The Great Emancipator.

In 1860, the founder of David Berg & Company had just started in business for himself, making franks in the Old World manner in the back of a butcher shop on Pacific Avenue, between Van Buren and Jackson, where the huge Board of Trade building stands today. In those days, the franks were almost 2½ inches longer, although slightly thinner than they are today. Because little, if any, relish or mustard was used in 1860, high quality was essential and Berg made his reputation by providing just that.

The G.O.P. Convention which opened during his first year, seemed to David Berg a heaven-sent opportunity to introduce himself and his product to hundreds of potential -- and hungry -- customers. He loaded his franks into a wagon and set up temporary convention headquarters at the Wigwam, site of the 1860 conclave in Chicago.

CANNON INSTEAD OF TV ANNOUNCED NOMINATION IN 1860

An unidentified man, perched high in the roof of Chicago's famous Wigwam dred years ago, watched the third roll call on the convention floor below, lled another watchful waiter standing beside a loaded cannon on the ground de, and---"Boom!"---Chicagoans knew the Republican Party had nominated iam Lincoln for President of the United States.

That's how the big news of that second Republican National Convention was ied from the convention hall on May 18, 1860.

Today, with the 27th Republican National Convention about to open on July i the same City of Chicago, television, radio and teletypewriters are set to / the 1960 GOP convention story instantaneously to a waiting America and to rest of the world. In fact, an estimated 45 million homes will see the iation as it takes place, step by step.

But a century ago it was far different. Only the limited number of people / enough to crowd into the Wigwam could see what was happening as it happened. more thousands crowded the streets around the convention hall hoping to be g the first to hear the results.

Inside, the third roll proceeded slowly. When that ballot was completed, oln led with 231½ votes, but still short of the required 233 for nomination. iam H. Seward, who had topped Lincoln on the first two ballots, dropped w him with 180 votes. Pandemonium broke loose when the convention realized oln was ahead.

A courageous man whose name has long since been lost to political history, g to his roof-rafter perch and frantically watched below. The cannoneer ed anxiously outside.

Then Ohio Delegate D. K. Cartter made an announcement that raised the roof.

"I arise, Mr. Chairman," he intoned, "to announce the change of four is of Ohio from Mr. Chase to Abraham Lincoln."

Lincoln exceeded the required 233 votes and had a majority.

FOR RELEASE
1 PM CDT SUNDAY
July 24, 1960

Charles H. Percy, Chairman of the 1960 Republican Platform Committee, today released the first five planks of the 1960 Republican Platform, as approved by the 103-member platform committee.

The platform will be submitted to the convention for its approval on Wednesday, July 27.

The first planks approved are those dealing with Agriculture, Economic Growth and Business, Government Administration, Government Finance and National Defense.

AGRICULTURE

Rep. Melvin R. Laird, Subcommittee Chairman

Americans are the best-fed and the best-clothed people in the world. Our challenge fortunately is one of dealing with abundance, not overcoming shortage. The fullness of our fields, forests and grazing lands is an important advantage in our struggle against worldwide tyranny and our crusade against poverty. Our farmers have provided us with a powerful weapon in the ideological and economic struggle in which we are now engaged.

Yet, far too many of our farm families, the source of this strength, have not received a fair return for their labors. For too long, Democratic-controlled Congresses have stalemated progress by clinging to obsolete programs conceived for different times and different problems.

Promises of specific levels of price support or a single type of program for all agriculture are cruel deceptions based upon the pessimistic pretense that only with rigid controls can farm families be aided. The Republican Party will provide within the framework of individual freedom a greater bargaining power to assure an equitable return for the work and capital supplied by farmers.

The Republican Party pledges itself to develop new programs to improve and stabilize farm family income. It recognizes two main challenges; the immediate one of utilizing income-depressing surpluses, and the long-range one of steady balanced growth and development with a minimum of federal interference and control.

To utilize immediately surpluses in an orderly manner, with a minimum impact on domestic and foreign markets, we pledge:

Where RICHARD NIXON Spent His Boyhood

Background on Yorba Linda and Whittier

180

When Richard Nixon was growing up in Southern California, his surroundings in the small communities of Yorba Linda and Whittier were--although nobody realized it then -- laying the simple, solid, humble foundations Americans traditionally like to discover about their great leaders.

Yorba Linda, Richard Nixon's birthplace, was a rural citrus area too undeveloped to rate even as a town when he arrived January 9, 1913.

It was a little more than a crossroads, just east of the then-small but prominent towns of Anaheim and Fullerton. Orange and lemon groves, such as the one Frank and Hannah Nixon operated, were the principal agricultural resource, along with some truck crops. Oil wells sprouted on the rolling hills a few miles away.

It was a quiet, peaceful place to live. Thirty miles east and a little south from Los Angeles, it was too far from the big city to attract more than a few hardy Sunday motorists in those days.

Swimming was good in the irrigation ditches.

The boys wore mostly bib overalls or blue jeans, the girls simple cotton dresses -- except when they had to get dressed up for Sunday School or church.

The mild climate, except for a few frosty winter days, made for plenty of open-air living -- and in the summer the absence of sidewalks and paved streets made it good to go barefoot.

The small, frame house where Richard Nixon was born in the front bedroom looks today much as it did in 1913 -- except for a plaque on a stone marker in front of it -- and that it is surrounded by a school instead of a lemon grove.

A group of Yorba Linda civic leaders organized a campaign to buy and preserve the old Nixon property. It is now owned by the Yorba Linda Elementary School district and is fenced off from the playground of the Richard Nixon School, one of two in the community. It is occupied by the school custodian and his family.

Today in Yorba Linda modern residences and shopping centers have taken over most of the old groves. The community is very much a part of the suburbia of metropolitan Los Angeles. Population around the old crossroads now approximates 3000, lured by the Chamber of Commerce slogan, "Good Country Living in Fabulous Orange County" -- and by proximity to freeways that put Los Angeles only 35 minutes away.

Yorba Linda has the first -- and one of the most active -- citizen clubs supporting Richard Nixon. It is called "Neighbors for Nixon."

When Richard Nixon was nine years old, in 1922, his parents sold the lemon grove and moved their four sons (a fifth was born later) to a section called East Whittier, outside the quiet town of Whittier, 12 miles nearer to Los Angeles from Yorba Linda. There they established their combination grocery store, gasoline station and residence.

Whittier and its surrounding area was the land of Shoshonean Indians ib the eighteenth century and was on the El Camino Real Trail of the California mission padres.

Gradually it became ranching territory in the land grant days -- the Los Nietos ranch of Juan Crispin Perez, around 1833, and later the famous Pio Pico, last Mexican governor of California.

BIOGRAPHY OF MRS. CLARE B. WILLIAMS
(Mrs. Frank E. Williams)

Mrs. Clare B. Williams of St. Petersburg, Florida, is Assistant Chairman of the Republican National Committee. She is also Director of the Women's Division of the Republican National Committee, Republican National Committeewoman for Florida, and member of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee.

Mrs. Williams is well known for her consistent efforts to promote the Republican Party from the precinct to the state and national levels. She is a veteran campaigner and organizer. In 1954 she won election as Florida State Committeewoman for Pinellas County and on May 29, 1956 won a state-wide race for the post of Republican National Committeewoman for Florida. She was re-elected without opposition to that post in 1960.

She was Vice Chairman for the First Congressional District of the Florida State Committee in the 1954 campaign which elected the first Florida Republican to Congress, and for the 1956 battle when the seat was made safe by lifting it out of the "marginal" category.

Shortly after becoming National Committeewoman in 1956, Mrs. Williams was one of only seven women in the United States selected by former Chairman Leonard Hall to serve on the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee. She has continued as a member of the Executive Committee under two subsequent Chairmen, Mr. Meade Alcorn and Senator Thruston B. Morton.

Mrs. Williams has come up the political ladder rung by rung in both the Republican Party organization and in Republican women's club work. She served for many years as a precinct worker in St. Petersburg. Thus she brings to her post wide and varied experience and a comphrehensive point of view.

Mrs. Williams joined the Women's Republican Club in St. Petersburg in 1950 as a working committee member. The largest political organization of any kind in the entire South, the Club reached a peak of 1,500 members in 1956 under her guidance as President. Mrs. Williams has been a member of the Executive Committee of the Florida Federation of Republican Women since 1952.

Mrs. Williams was formerly Clare Brown, a native of Syracuse, New York, and a 1931 graduate of the University of Syracuse. She was reared in a politically conscious home. Her mother was an energetic precinct worker and Clare learned early about canvassing and distributin campaign literature. As soon as she obtained her driver's license, teen-age Clare began driving voters to the polls and became a poll worker when she was old enough to vote.

Mrs. Williams retired from her career as a teacher and subsequently merchandising executive shortly after her marriage to the late Frank E. Williams, a prominent St. Louis, Missouri, attorney. She then became active in St. Louis social, civic and philanthropic organizations.

MRS. PETER GIBSON

Mrs. Peter Gibson of Monroe, Michigan, President of the National Federation of Republican Women, and a volunteer worker for the Republican Party for over 20 years, has been devoting much of her time in a concerted effort to stimulate American women to take an active part in the Party. As the unanimous choice of the N.F.R.W. Nominating Committee both in 1958 and in 1956 when she first was elected President, Mrs. Gibson has made major contributions to this position. During her two terms as President of the N.F.R.W. the production of new material directed particularly toward better programming and training in the art of practical politics has been a major objective. These include: Goldmine of Facts for Republican Women; Six-Steps for Victory in '60; Minutes for Better Campaigning; So You're Chairman of Public Relations; and, Keeping the Fun in Fund-Raising. In behalf of the N.F.R.W., Mrs. Gibson has traveled extensively throughout the nation ~~as well as to~~ Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico, visiting clubs and state federations to promote the Federation's growth and to maintain an harmonious working and supporting relationship with the Republican Party organization.

Mrs. Gibson began her political life in 1936 in her resident state of Michigan (8th generation Hoosier), by collecting absentee ballots. Since then, she has been a precinct worker, County Vice Chairman and President of her local Women's Republican Club; President of the Republican Women's Federation of Michigan (holding the latter, two two year terms); State Vice Chairman of 21 states. At the Republican National Convention in 1952, Mrs. Gibson was the only woman delegate from Maine. She was also a delegate at the San Francisco Convention in 1956. In 1958 she served on the Assay Commission, a Presidential appointment.

In addition to her political interests, Catharine Gibson has worked in various positions with the Eastern Star, the Rainbow Girls, the Presbyterian Church, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Business and Professional Women. Born in Sullivan, Indiana, Mrs. Gibson later moved to Detroit where she attended The Wicker School of Fine Arts. Her husband is associated with an automobile industry and does not partioipate actively in politics; however, he wholeheartedly endorses his wife's interest. They have one daughter, Mrs. Douglas Taylor.

REPRESENTATIVE WALTER H. JUDD, Republican, of Minneapolis, Minnesota. He is a physician and surgeon, born in Rising City, Nebraska, September 25, 1898. He enlisted in the U.S. Army in 1918 and served in the field artillery. He received a B.A. degree in 1920 and an M.D. degree in 1923 from the University of Nebraska; held a fellowship in surgery at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minnesota, 1932-34, and numerous honorary degrees from various colleges and universities.

He was a medical missionary and hospital superintendent in China 1925-31 and 1934-38 under the foreign mission board of the Congregational Churches. After firsthand observation of Communist movement in China beginning in 1927 and invasion of China by Japan in 1937, he returned to the United States in 1938 to speak throughout the Nation on the Japanese military expansion and the threat to world peace of Communist subversion of China. Having witnessed the Japanese invasion and the communist subversion in China Dr. Judd was a recognized authority on the dual menace to world peace. He addressed more than 1,400 audiences in 46 states in the two years he devoted to his warnings.

Dr. Judd entered private medical practice in Minneapolis in 1941. After Pearl Harbor, individuals and groups representing all segments of his community urged him to become a candidate for the House of Representatives from Minnesota's fifth district. He was elected in 1942 and has won reelection ever since.

As a member of the House of Representatives, Dr. Judd authored legislation for the World Health Organization and the International Children's Emergency Fund. He played a decisive role in the development of legislation for techiical aid to underveloped areas, better known as the Point Four Program. He campaigned for an international peace organization for four years before the United Nations was founded in 1945. He advocated the United States-Philippine Mutual Security Pact, and was a delegate to the signing of that pact and the Mutual Defense Pacts with Australia and New Zealand in September, 1951. Dr. Judd is a ranking Republican member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Rep. Judd initiated proposals which were the forerunners of the Vandenberg Resolution for strengthening the U.N. by limiting the veto. He was author of legislation for a Pacific pact, the bill to remove racial discrimination clauses from U.S. immigration laws, and legislation furnishing wheat to India and Pakistan.

Dr. Judd married Miriam Louise Barber of Montclair, N.J. in 1932. The Judds have three children: Mary Lou (Mrs. Norman Carpenter), Carolyn, and Eleanor Judd.

SENATOR THRUSTON BALLARD MORTON

CHAIRMAN OF THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE

Senator Thruston Ballard Morton, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, is a Kentuckian whose ancestry is closely associated with his native state's founding and history, as well as with American exploration and settlement of the so-called Northwest Territory, now the great American heartland.

He is a direct descendant, through seven generations, of Dr. John Walker, the first white man to build a log cabin west of the Alleghenies. He is also directly descended from William Clark of the historic Lewis and Clark Expedition. His uncle six generations back, was George Rogers Clark, who commanded the famous Revolutionary War expedition which captured Kaskaskia and Vincennes, and thus secured the Northwest Territory.

Senator Morton is a legatee not only of the American Pioneer Spirit, but of a particular brand of pioneer spirit perfectly willing to fight for what its possessors believed rightfully their own. In Louisville, Kentucky, where Thruston Morton was born on August 19, 1907, they still tell stories about his redoubtable maternal grandfather, Thruston Ballard, one of the rugged individualists who founded the family grain milling firm, Ballard and Ballard, in the early 1880's.

Grandfather Ballard and other co-founders of Ballard and Ballard--a brother, Charles, and Charles' brother-in-law, Gustave A. Breaux--like all millers of that day, was a wheat speculator, who made and lost several fortunes, but never lost control of his mill. During one winter, when cold weather killed most of the Ohio Valley wheat, Thruston Ballard bought nearly half a million bushels, stored in Portland, Oregon. The price began to climb, and when it was up 40 cents above what he paid, Mr. Ballard ordered shipment from Portland. Nothing happened. After several unexplained delays he headed west--taking along, as usual, his large pistol.

The Portland wheat seller gave his eastern buyer half a dozen lame excuses why the wheat hadn't been shipped east. He wound up with a tedious statement that, according to the law of Oregon, he was not obliged to deliver

Chicago is preparing a colorful, tumultuous welcome to President and Mrs. Eisenhower Tuesday when they arrive for a two-day appearance at the Republican National Convention. The greeting will give political figures, Chicagoans, and convention delegates opportunity to cheer the Chief Executive at three "Thank You Ike" welcoming receptions and along the route of a motorcade through the heart of the Loop.

Ike and Mamie, scheduled to touch down at 11:05 a.m. (Chicago time) at O'Hare International Airport, will be greeted by Governor William G. Stratton of Illinois, Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.), and Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, who will pin a medal on the President designating him an "honorary citizen of Chicago."

The President then will receive a unique "21-person salute" from a group of Chicago area citizens representing many segments of Chicago life. They will be introduced to the President and Mrs. Eisenhower by William H. Rentschler, young Chicago businessman, chairman of the "Ike Day" arrangements committee.

Included in the "21-person" group will be a labor leader, a druggist, a Korean combat veteran, a housewife, a farmer, a Negro publisher, an army general, a skilled union member, a Methodist pastor, a public school superintendent, a newspaper correspondent, a local politician, a high school honor student, a milk truck driver, a doctor, a civic leader, the head of a grocery chain, a Hungarian-American leader, a career woman, a major league baseball magnate, and a leading patron of the arts.

REMARKS OF ROBERT B. ANDERSON, SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY, TO THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM COMMITTEE, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, 10:30 A.M., C.D.T., JULY 19, 1960.

Our economy should be judged on how effectively it meets the needs of people -- in freedom.

To the party of Abraham Lincoln, one policy is basic -- the good of people comes first.

Our approach is human, not statistical. Our programs are practical, not illusory. Greater material achievements are simply a means to an end. And the proper end is the maximum opportunity for individuals, strong in self-reliance, secure in freedom and secure in a prosperous economy, to realize their highest aspirations.

How can these aspirations best be realized?

Our answer is clear and strong.

New jobs have been created and living standards in the United States have risen above those anywhere else in the world not by government blueprint, but through the massive power of millions of individuals working in freedom and secure in the knowledge that the rewards of enterprise will accrue to the people, not to the state.

During the past seven years, employment in our growing economy has increased from 61 million to 66 million, home ownership outside farms has grown from 22 million owner occupied units in 1952 to 28 million at the present time, individual savings (in savings deposits and shares, U. S. Savings Bonds and other government securities, and private and government insurance and pension reserves) have grown by $170 billion, to reach the

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon will be ranking guests at the top glamour event of the Republican National Convention, the "Great Lady" luncheon - tableau, to be held at the Conrad Hilton Hotel Wednesday, July 27.

Mr. Jaren L. Jones, Vice Chairman of the Convention Arrangements Committee, announced Mrs. Eisenhower's acceptance today.

"The standing-room-only event is expected to pack an overflow crowd of 1,450 women political leaders, celebrities and press into the hotel ballroom," Mr. Jones said. "It is the only social function Mrs. Eisenhower will attend during her brief stay in Chicago."

Mrs. C. Wayland Brooks, National Committeewoman for Illinois and Chairman of the Convention Host Committee, is coordinating the event, which will combine fashion, political, and historical highlights of the past century.

The luncheon is one of a series of women's activities under the direction of Mrs. Clare B. Williams, Assistant Chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Mrs. Brooks described the midday program as a "moving historical tableau" based on reproductions of twelve gowns worn by Republican First Ladies, to be modeled by wives of top GOP officials of the present day.

She said that the "models'" VIP husbands had expressed such keen interest in the event that a small gallery space had been reserved for them.

Reproductions were adapted directly from originals in the Smithsonian Museum in Washington by Madame Barbara Karinska, costume designer for the Metropolitan Opera Company, formerly associated with Cecil B. deMille productions. Costs of reproducing the lavish gowns were underwritten by Miss Evyan of Evyan Perfumes, New York City.

Luncheon tickets, costing $10 per person, are being distributed on a proportionate basis through Republican National Committeewomen for each State. Standing room is in demand.

A pair of attractive Young Republicans wearing red, white and blue "Republican Bell Ringer" costumes will operate the wheel.

It will swing to "JOBS" when Mrs. Alice Leopold, Assistant to the Secretary of Labor, points out that today 68.1 million Americans, an all-time high, are gainfully employed, with wages at their highest point in history.

RECORD ROLE FOR WOMEN AT 1960 GOP CONVENTION

"The influence of women in nominating a President will reach an all-time high tomorrow when the opening gavel bangs at the 1960 Republican National Convention," Mrs. Clare B. Williams, Assistant Chairman of the Republican National Committee, said today.

She announced that 607 women delegates and alternates, a record high for either party and almost one-fourth of the total of 2,662, would attend. Of these, 202 are delegates and 405 are alternates. (These figures are the unofficial totals to be validated by the Credentials Committee.)

Republicans also have chalked up a new high in the eleven women who hold top Convention positions. This reflects an addition of four to the seven previously announced top women jobholders.

Referring to the delegates, Mrs. Williams said, "This surpasses our previous high marks of 563 in 1956 and 389 in 1952. It reflects the steadily increasing sphere of activity and influence of Republican women.

"I'd like to emphasize also that every women who casts a ballot in this Republican Convention has a full vote. She is not a second-class citizen with a fraction of a vote, a position to which women were downgraded in Los Angeles."

The State of Florida leads with the highest proportion of women, 50% of its delegation. Thirteen women delegates and ten alternates out of a total of 52 are attending this Convention.

In numerical strength, rankings are as follows:

1. New York - 40 women (13 dels., 27 alts.) out of 192-member delegation
2. Texas - 38 women (12 dels.,26 alts.) out of 108-member delegation
3. California - 34 women (11 dels.,23 alts.) out of 140-member delegation
4. Minnesota - 26 women (11 dels.,15 alts.) out of 56-member delegation
5. Pennsylvania - 26 women (3 dels.,23 alts.) out of 140-member delegation

PRESENTATION OF REP. JOHN W. BYRNES,
CHAIRMAN, HOUSE REPUBLICAN POLICY COMMITTEE,
BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS (PLATFORM),
1960 REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, SHERATON
BLACKSTONE HOTEL, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS,
JULY 19, 1960.

Mr. Chairman and Members of the Committee,

I am honored by your invitation to appear before you. The work you have begun today is the most important business before our convention. That is always true of Republican conventions. It is particularly true today in view of what happened in Los Angeles.

The chief concern of the Democrat party was to pick a ticket acceptable to its dissident factions. The main Democrat objective, it was made clear there, is to regain national power at any cost.

Our task is vastly different.

Our concern is with enunciating a philosophy of government which we believe is best for our country, our people and their future - even at the risk of losing an election.

I believe most sincerely that a Republican victory is essential for the welfare of our nation and I want that victory as much as any man. I would prefer defeat, however, to a hollow and transient victory won by compromising basic principles and the welfare of our children. Any attempt to put success before conviction would be a fatal mistake for our party and a disaster for our nation.

If our party succumbs, as the Democrats have done, to expedient tickets and expedient policies for the sake of victory, we gravely endanger a system of government based upon the recurring choice between two political parties. If the Democrats choose to seek power in an orgy of deals, if victory has become so important to them that no promise is too outlandish to make, it becomes crucially necessary that the Republican Party make its basic appeal to reason and respon sibility.

The great test of a democracy is the ability and willingness of the people to avoid the excesses which lead inevitably to its destruction. The American people must never be deprived, by Republicans

SURVEY SHOWS NIXON CAN'T WIN: BRINTON

The National Draft Rockefeller Committee said today (Thurs. July 21) that detailed results of the public opinion survey conducted in five key states "shows conclusively that Vice President Nixon cannot win the presidential election in November."

William M. Brinton, chairman of the National Draft Rockefeller Committee, who received the complete data of the survey today, said Republican defeat is certain unless Governor Rockefeller is nominated by delegates to the GOP National Convention next week.

Mr. Brinton states:

"One important thing about this survey is the reliability of the firm which took it. This firm has done substantial work for the National Republican Committee and has worked with Leonard Hall, Vice President Nixon's Campaign Manager, since 1952. The size of the survey in every state is comparable to the size of the samplings used for the Republican National Committee and Mr. Hall in the work done by the Political Analysis Associates in 1952 and 1956.

VOTERS INUNDATE DELEGATES WITH
'DRAFT ROCKEFELLER' MAIL

A record flood of letters, telegrams, and long distance calls is deluging Republican Convention delegations from states where Draft Rockefeller advertisements have urged a grass roots write-in campaign.

Hotel officials said the deluge is far greater than at the last GOP convention or others in their memory. They termed it "the biggest we've ever seen."

William M. Brinton, chairman of the National Draft Rockefeller Committee, said today, "We do not know of any other appeal for write-in support except ours for Rockefeller. In what had been supposed to be a cut and dried convention, there is no other reason for the vast influx of letters, wires, and calls than a response for Rockefeller.

"This clearly is a mass public appeal that the delegates from all states support the man they believe can win in November."

Brinton called upon delegates to heed the call of the people.

2 more days for you to win in November

Nominate ROCKEFELLER Wednesday!

The voters are speaking.

They are clamoring for a Republican ticket that can win—a ticket headed by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

Through scores of thousands of letters, telegrams, post cards, and petition signatures, they are asking you to nominate on Wednesday the only man who can carry us to victory in November. For verification, take a few moments to read the news release following this message.

The voters' call is building to crescendo proportions in "Draft Rockefeller" headquarters, with every corner of the country being heard from.

Item: The chairman of the Colorado "Draft Rockefeller" movement, to prove that the voters of his state overwhelmingly favor Rockefeller, carries with him an attache case containing 38,450 signatures affixed to "Draft Rockefeller" petitions obtained in less than 10 days.

Item: In Ohio, thousands and thousands of Buckeye voters have signed petitions and are telegraphing their delegates. The Ohio "Draft Rockefeller" movement is less than two weeks old and yet includes more than 2,000 volunteer workers. From ads in just two cities, more than 1,100 requests were received for "Draft Rockefeller" petitions.

Item: The New York committee received an "overwhelming" response to ads in two New York City papers. Within a few days, petition circulators had received more than 25,000 signatures of voters urging our convention to nominate Rockefeller. Thousands volunteered their help. Particularly encouraging, reports the New York committee chairman, was the enthusiastic response from minority groups. And don't forget: We must have these New York votes to win in November.

Item: In California, response for Rockefeller was so great after newspaper advertising that "Draft" headquarters had to send out an emergency call for more help the day after the advertising appeared. Reports an active member of the California group: "I was active in helping both Eisenhower campaigns, and the man-in-the street support for drafting Rockefeller exceeds any of the enthusiasm I observed in working for Pres. Eisenhower." Another late note from San Francisco: A late newspaper study shows that Nixon has slipped even further in popularity behind Kennedy . . . more proof that Nixon can't win, that only Rockefeller can lead us to the White House next November.

Yesterday's ROLL CALL pointed out that the "hue and cry of convenience is to nominate Rockefeller for vice president—just to get his name on the ticket," and that "if the name of Nelson Rockefeller makes or breaks our ticket, that name belongs at the top!"

Even the man who will nominate the Vice President concedes the Rockefeller magic. In a press conference, Gov. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon said he felt there is "a great desire on the part of party leaders" to get Rockefeller on the ticket and "I hope they pull out all the stops and go all the way" toward that end.

We need Rockefeller to win in November, and the only way we can win is to have him at the top. Nominate him for president Wednesday!

On Sunday Gov. Rockefeller talked to more than 5,500 persons at a Civil Rights Rally in Chicago's Liberty Baptist Church, and the warmth and friendliness of the Negro audience to him was obvious . . . The call for Rockefeller

A GOP CONVENTION FEATURE....NO. 3

CANNON INSTEAD OF TV ANNOUNCED NOMINATION IN 1860

An unidentified man, perched high in the roof of Chicago's famous Wigwam a hundred years ago, watched the third roll call on the convention floor below, signalled another watchful waiter standing beside a loaded cannon on the ground outside, and---"Boom!"---Chicagoans knew the Republican Party had nominated Abraham Lincoln for President of the United States.

That's how the big news of that second Republican National Convention was flashed from the convention hall on May 18, 1860.

Today, with the 27th Republican National Convention about to open on July 25 in the same City of Chicago, television, radio and teletypewriters are set to carry the 1960 GOP convention story instantaneously to a waiting America and to the rest of the world. In fact, an estimated 45 million homes will see the nomination as it takes place, step by step.

But a century ago it was far different. Only the limited number of people lucky enough to crowd into the Wigwam could see what was happening as it happened. Many more thousands crowded the streets around the convention hall hoping to be among the first to hear the results.

Inside, the third roll proceeded slowly. When that ballot was completed, Lincoln led with 231½ votes, but still short of the required 233 for nomination. William H. Seward, who had topped Lincoln on the first two ballots, dropped below him with 180 votes. Pandemonium broke loose when the convention realized Lincoln was ahead.

A courageous man whose name has long since been lost to political history, clung to his roof-rafter perch and frantically watched below. The cannoneer waited anxiously outside.

Then Ohio Delegate D. K. Cartter made an announcement that raised the roof.

"I arise, Mr. Chairman," he intoned, "to announce the change of four votes of Ohio from Mr. Chase to Abraham Lincoln."

Lincoln exceeded the required 233 votes and had a majority.

HISTORIC GAVEL TO OPEN
CENTENNIAL CONVENTION

History will echo through the Chicago Amphitheatre Monday when Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky wields a century-old gavel which opened the 1860 convention here which nominated Abraham Lincoln as the Republican standard-bearer.

The gavel, which was used during the convention 100 years ago by George Ashman, has been loaned to the Republican Party by his Great-great-great grandson, George Ashman Morton of New Haven, Conn.

The gavel was historic even before its use at the Wigwam Convention on May 18, 1860. It was fashioned from wood taken from Admiral Perry's flagship which sailed into Tokyo harbor to establish the "Open Door" trade policy with the Orient.

Former Natioanl Republican Chairman Meade Alcorn persuaded the Connecticut owner to lend the gavel for this year's Lincoln Centennial Convention. It has been insured for $10,000.

Proving its authenticity is a letter inherited by the Chairman's heir, Morton. It was sent from Springfield, Ill., on May 23, 1860, and expresses candidate Lincoln's appreciation for Ashman's presiding over the convention, and assures the Chairman of Lincoln's intent to follow the platform adopted.

In his eloquent style, Lincoln said: "Imploring the assistance of Divine Providence, and with due regard to the views and feelings of all who were represented in the Convention; to the rights of all the States, and territories, and people of the Nation; to the inviolability of the Constitution, and the perpetual union, harmony, and prosperity of all, I am most happy to co-operate for the practical success of the principles declared by the Convention."

In their platform, the Democrats unearthed the 1944 domestic economic promises of Franklin D. Roosevelt--never implemented by the Democrats--and re-promised them in 1960.

"If the Democrats will just look at the facts," Senator Morton said, "they will find that the prosperity promised by Roosevelt is now a matter of reality under the Republicans."

STATEMENT OF SENATOR KENNETH B. KEATING (R., N.Y.)
AT THE MASS MEETING OF THE NAACP, JULY 24, 1960, AT THE LIBERTY BAPTIST CHURCH, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

H118

My friends:

It is an honor and privilege to participate in this important meeting dedicated to the theme "Freedom Now."

The NAACP has been in the forefront of the struggle for justice and liberty throughout its history. Your work has demonstrated what can be done by dedication and sacrifice to advance the rights of man under God. You have breathed vitality into long dormant words of our Constitution. I salute you for your past achievements and wish you every success in your unceasing efforts to carry out your mission.

America must not hedge in its support of freedom and justice. We are the beneficiaries of the most successful democracy ever conceived. We have an obligation to make conditions in our country consistent with the ideals which inspired America's birth. America must practice what it preaches. It must give life to all the principles proclaimed in our Fundamental Law. It must never allow those principles to die of neglect or be tarnished by abuse.

Those would would deny to their fellow citizens any of their sacred constitutional rights are theives. Our liberties are their loot. We must be even more relentless in condemning and overcoming this kind of larceny of our spiritual rights than we are in condemning the larceny of our property.

And those who would deny freedom and justice to any American on the grounds of states rights completely pervert that concept.

For such a cry implies that the states have the right to discriminate against citizens who attempt to vote.

It implies that the states have the right to flout the law of the land requiring school desegregation.

It implies that the states have the right to allow lynch mobs to act with impugnity.

I reject any such implications. These are not states rights -- these are states wrongs.

Chicago is preparing a colorful, tumultuous welcome to President and Mrs. Eisenhower Tuesday when they arrive for a two-day appearance at the Republican National Convention. The greeting will give political figures, Chicagoans, and convention delegates opportunity to cheer the Chief Executive at three "Thank You Ike" welcoming receptions and along the route of a motorcade through the heart of the Loop.

Ike and Mamie, scheduled to touch down at 11:05 a.m. (Chicago time) at O'Hare International Airport, will be greeted by Governor William G. Stratton of Illinois, Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.), and Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, who will pin a medal on the President designating him an "honorary citizen of Chicago."

The President then will receive a unique "21-person salute" from a group of Chicago area citizens representing many segments of Chicago life. They will be introduced to the President and Mrs. Eisenhower by William H. Rentschler, young Chicago businessman, chairman of the "Ike Day" arrangements committee.

Included in the "21-person" group will be a labor leader, a druggist, a Korean combat veteran, a housewife, a farmer, a Negro publisher, an army general, a skilled union member, a Methodist pastor, a public school superintendent, a newspaper correspondent, a local politician, a high school honor student, a milk truck driver, a doctor, a civic leader, the head of a grocery chain, a Hungarian-American leader, a career woman, a major league baseball magnate, and a leading patron of the arts.

Philip R. Clarke, Chicago's "first citizen" last year who successfully led the Community Fund drive, will present to the President a historical lithograph portraying Michigan Avenue in the 1880s, emphasizing Chicago's role as the world's transportation hub. The print was selected by W. Russell Button, noted Chicago art dealer.

From O'Hare, President and Mrs. Eisenhower will make a 15-minute helicopter

Convention Call

#127

111 CHICAGO, SUNDAY, JULY 24, 1960 ★★★ FINAL

Airport Crowd Roars Hello to Rockefeller

Petticoat Politicos for Rockefeller, Miss Joan Sanders (left) and Miss Ginger Lorr, whipped up enthusiasm for their cause when they appeared at the National Draft Rockefeller Committee headquarters in the Blackstone theater, Chicago, prior to the opening of the Republican convention. They were just two of several pretty volunteers who donned white hats, red blouses and blue skirts to pass out "Draft Rockefeller" buttons in Chicago.

Call For Rocky To Head Ticket

Motorcade Trip to Loop Cheered by Thousands

A cheering crowd of more than 1,000 demonstrators and onlookers roared out a hearty welcome to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller on his arrival in Chicago Saturday.

Spectators reported that the crowd broke through police lines to surround the Governor's Convair as it taxied up to the South Terminal building of Midway airport at 12:24 p.m.

A 30-piece uniformed band, a five-piece combo, and hundreds of eager demonstrators waving placards and banners added to the tumult as it shouted, when Gov. and Mrs. Rockefeller debarked from the plane.

Reporters, photographers, TV cameramen, and radio crews carried the Governor's words to the nation as he spoke to the crowd from an airline boarding ramp.

"We can all be proud as Republicans and citizens that we are going to have a platform with vision and perception to deal with the problems we face, and to come out forthrightly with a position on which all Republicans can stand," he said.

He thanked the crowd several times for coming out to greet him, and then introduced Mrs. Rockefeller. She, too, greeted the demonstrators, but her words were largely drowned out by the cheering and noise.

A motorcade of buses, cars, and trucks escorted the Rockefellers from Midway to the Kungsholm Restaurant where they attended a luncheon for governors and their wives given by Illinois Governor and Mrs. Stratton.

Another enthusiastic demonstration greeted the Governor at the Kungsholm, and participants continued to parade in front of the restaurant while Rockefeller was inside.

Placards reading "Draft Rocky," "We Want a Convention, Not a Coronation," "Rocky Means Victory," and "Who Else Can Beat Cox, Win" were carried at the airport and the Kungsholm. Slate placards identifying the many groups taking part in the greeting were also in evidence.

Members of the National Draft Rockefeller Committee expressed great satisfaction at the welcome given to the Governor. They pointed out that a recent Young Republican groups took place in the welcome, which they interpreted as indicating the growing support for Rockefeller.

Many Don't Like 'Give-Away' Nixon GOP Nomination

Mass demonstrations in major cities by Republicans dissatisfied with the Nixon "give-away" nomination are the latest indication that the Draft Rockefeller movement is making headway.

The demonstrations were held in Chicago, New York, San Francisco and other major cities over the week-end. Pickets bearing signs reading "We Want a Convention—Not A Coronation" paraded in downtown areas.

Meanwhile in Chicago, William M. Brinton, the 40-year-old San Francisco lawyer who heads the National Draft Rockefeller Committee, expressed surprise at the demonstrations.

He is increasingly optimistic about the New York Governor's chances for the Presidential nomination.

"We expect an avalanche of telegrams, phone calls, and letters from the folks back home demanding that the GOP delegates back Rockefeller," he said.

He reported that a series of draft-Rockefeller newspaper advertisements there week ago drew 30,000 responses, more than enough to indicate Rockefeller has "tremendous grass roots support."

Brinton has no official connection with Rockefeller or his staff. In fact, he has met the Governor only twice. Brinton and his friends have spearheaded the draft movement on their own, convinced that only a ticket headed by Rockefeller can stave off Republican defeat in November.

Draft Rockefeller committees are active in the following states:

California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Utah, Washington, Wisconsin, and West Virginia.

Big Rockefeller Coffee Hour Sunday Noon at Sheraton

The Illinois Draft Rockefeller Committee has invited supporters, the Republican National Committee, and delegates to a "Coffee-Hour" honoring Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller and Mrs. Rockefeller on Sunday at noon in the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel.

Invitees are the thousands of people who have responded to the call for support and active participation in the movement to place the New York governor's name in nomination.

Willard J. Loarie, of Deerfield and Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay, of St. Charles, are chairman and co-chairman of the Illinois Draft Rockefeller Committee which has set up headquarters at the Blackstone theater for their big drive.

Rocky's Schedule
